EXAMINING THE EXAMINER: WAIVER OF THE ATTORNEY-CLIENT
PRIVILEGE AND THE OUTER LIMITS OF AN EXAMINER'S
POWERS IN BANKRUPTCY

Jeffery A. Deller, Esq...... 187

This article discusses the traditional role of an examiner in bankruptcy proceedings, as well as the fact that the role of an examiner is often expanded in complex Chapter 11 cases to include duties and powers normally reposed in bankruptcy trustees. The article examines the interesting question of whether an examiner may be cloaked with the powers of a bankruptcy trustee, and discusses this question in the context of addressing the issue of whether an examiner in bankruptcy has the power to waive a debtor's attorney-client privilege.

THE CIVIL JUSTICE SYSTEM BRIDGES THE GREAT DIVIDE IN CONSUMER PROTECTION

Christopher Placitella and Justin Klein 219

This article discusses the tendency of American consumers to place their confidence -- often blindly -- in agencies such as the FDA and the Consumer Product Safety Commission. It further analyzes the issue that recent events related to the pharmaceutical industry and the FDA raise serious doubts as to whether that blind trust is uniformly justified.
